Boyd Breakfast Sees Soldout Crowd

It was standing room only on Tuesday, September 17 at Fox Den Country Club as the Chamber welcomed back Randy Boyd as part of their 2019 Breakfast Speaker Series; registrations closed well before the event. Now in his role almost a year as interim President of the University of Tennessee Knoxville, Boyd shared facts, figures, and took Q&A on everything university related and beyond. Dressed in UT Extension Office uniform, he explained he was headed to one of 95 Extension offices, trying to meet his goal of visiting EVERY campus in the university system (this one would be 48).

Boyd started with a challenge for attendees to learn something they did NOT already know about their beloved university system, because he himself has learned a lot in his short time as president and continues to. Many were surprised to know the state university system supplies 70% of Tennessee's doctors and dentists, most from the Memphis campus. He touted the research going on at UT's Space Institute in Tullahoma,

FUELing Your Career

Each month this section will feature a piece written by a member business or young professional aimed at working professionals or recent graduates seeking tips and tools on how to FUEL their growing career, whatever the industry. The Chamber is excited to introduce this in conjunction with our growing young professionals program, F.U.E.L. (Focus. Unite. Engage. Lead.)

Death of Mentoring

Matt Sanderson,
MBA

(King University MBA Graduate)

Far less awkward than a first date when your high school sweetheart's parents tag along, but far more awkward than it should ever be, best describes the process of seeking mentorship in 2019. While it is debatable – and to an extent highly-subjective – as to whether or not there is currently a lack of voluntary mentorships, it is hard to dispute the value and benefits derived from a healthy mentorship. According to McLaughlin (2010), there are numerous variables that hinder mentorships including, but not limited to: lack of public award, lack of bandwidth and it is not expected by firms to engage in intentional mentorship opportunities.

Sanderson

Plain and simple, committing to be a voluntary mentor is a calculated decision that must be taken very seriously due to the physical and emotional commitments. However, whether it be a young professional at your firm or a high school student who bags your groceries - mentors are needed in all aspects of life. Every person on this Earth has something of value to offer. Similarly, there is not one person on this Earth that cannot learn something of value from someone. Do not allow self-imposed limits to suppress the growth of the future generation. A mentorship is truly a value exchange, and while the mentor passes along important tacit knowledge from years of experience and lessons learned, the mentee also provides value. Whether the value exchanged is a skill, or perhaps something as simple as another vantage point through a different lens, value comes in a variety of forms and fashions. It is this value passed along by the mentee that allows mentors to forge stronger relationships and connect to others at a deeper level.

Through this ability to communicate and empathize at a deeper level, leadership is enhanced organically. Mentors reap the rewards of enhanced leadership by seeing greater motivation, drive and initiative in mentees. It is this increased investment and feeling of purpose which the vision, efficiency and quality of work produced by mentees is amplified. Get out, remove the awkwardness and take the initiative to change a life, and then allow that life to change yours as well.

build and sustain his business which was established in 1986.

FUEL focuses exclusively on talented young professionals, entrepreneurs and emerging leaders, with a goal of providing opportunities to increase relationship building, networking and business skills through both social and educational opportunities, offer ways to get involved in community service projects and simply meet other young professionals in the area.

The F.U.E.L series was a result of ongoing strategic planning initiatives which began during the chamber board's retreat in Fall 2018. A high priority for the Chamber in 2019 was to better target and serve young professionals in the 40 or under demographic.

There is no charge for this event but registration is encouraged and appreciated; visit farragutchamber.com > Events and navigate to the link on September 25. Attendees are welcome from any career stage; but businesses are encouraged to send or bring a guest under 40. Rothchild Catering will provide appetizers and a fun Mocktail Bar.

where a rocket team has won against the likes of MIT in a rocket launch, sending UT's rocket one mile higher into space than other institutions. Boyd has also learned about UT's rodeo teams and participated in one through UT Martin, quipping, "Now that I've done that, I can actually say 'This isn't my first rodeo!'"

He called the hiring of Chancellor Donde Plowman, "My hardest, easiest, and best decision," saying the hiring process was difficult due to procedural requirements, choosing her was easy thanks to her instant affability with all key persons at UTK, and best because she is successfully in place. Later during the Q&A, a guest mentioned Chancellor Plowman had stated she'd like to see the "interim" word removed from Boyd's title. Boyd laughed explaining, "Donde is certainly enthusiastic about that; we get along very well. That decision is based on a lot of factors, but my wife, Jenny is the primary one!" He added the role is busier than his family initially expected, but if he stayed it would be to ensure goals started under his tenure reach successful completion.

Boyd also talked about his education initiatives, including the Drive to 55 goal to equip 55% or more of the state's population with a college degree or certificate by 2025. He spoke most passionately about the new UT Promise program launching in Fall 2020 (joking, "That title may sound familiar...

it's definitely not original!"). Similar to Tennessee Promise, which allows students who complete community service and maintain a minimum GPA to attend community college for free, the UT Promise program will allow any student with family income under $50,000 and the academic right to admittance to attend a University of Tennessee tuition-free. Boyd stated it is the first program of its kind in the country.

The Chamber appreciates the support of this event's sponsors with Presenting Sponsors Barber McMurry Architects, First Utility District of Knox County, Knox County and Town of Farragut; Community Sponsor Mike Baker Insurance Consulting, and Media Sponsor farragutpress.com.
